Informal investigations made by the league after New denied the opportunity to make official inquiries disclosed that charges against democrats whom he removed were trivial and that more serious offenses of the same nature by republicans had been disregarded and no recommendations of discharge made, Richard Boeckel, the league's local representative, declared.

In proceeding to the Behring Sea, the Algonquin may be able to determine where the aviators changed their course after taking off from Chignik and went across the peninsula in the effort to go down the Arctic side.

The three remaining members of the flight squadron were at Nasen on the island of Atka today, and will take off tomorrow for Chicago on the island of Attu, 530 miles.

INDIGNANT OVER COURSE TAK- EN TO SEEK A FUGI- TIVE

(By United Press)

Berlin, May 5.—Another Russian note of protest against invasion of the Russian mission trade building here by German police searching for an escaped prisoner, was delivered to the government today.

Russian Ambassador Kratinski has come to Moscow, the embassy announced.

The note reserves the right of the Russian government to "draw such conclusions as it deems necessary" from the incident. They protest that search of the building by the police last Saturday was an infringement on the diplomatic immunity of members of the diplomatic corps and accused the police of having another purpose than merely seeking a fugitive since they broke into desks where there was hardly a possibility of finding their man.

GERMANY MAY HAVE A COALITION GOVERNMENT, STATED

(By United Press)
Berlin, May 5.—A coalition government pledged to fulfillment of reparations obligations and carrying out the Dawes-Young plan, probably will take office as a result of the national elections in Germany Sunday, in which 25,000,000 men and women voted.

Whether the new cabinet will represent the present coalition or a new alignment of liberal parties, depends upon the final returns which are still somewhat confused owing to the presence in the field of more than 30 parties.

TREMENDOUS VOTE BY GERMAN NATIONALISTS

Berlin, May 5.—Tremendous votes were recorded for the German nationalist party in late returns this afternoon and that party now bids fair to hold as many seats in the next Reichstag as the socialists, following Sunday's elections.

The nationalists, however, are far from being strong enough to sabotage the Dawes-Young plan by themselves and at the close of the campaign indicated a willingness to fulfill reparations obligations.

A coalition government appears inevitable and undoubtedly it will approve the experts' proposals, but should it be decided that a two-thirds vote of the Reichstag is necessary to adopt the scheme, a new appeal to the voters will be required.

HIRAM JOHNSON AFTER CALIFORNIA STATE DELEGATION

FINAL EFFORT TO WIN DELEGA- TION TO REPUBLICAN NA- TIONAL CONVENTION

OPPOSED TO JOHNSON IS COOL- IDGE, CONDUCTING QUIET CAMPAIGN

(By United Press)

San Francisco, May 5.—What is looked upon as Hiram Johnson's final effort to win a state delegation to the republican national convention came to a close today.

His supporters brought to an end their campaign to swing California once more solidly behind its "favorite son," and send the delegation to the convention pledged to vote for Johnson until the bitter end in tomorrow's primary election.

Opposed to Johnson in a sharp but especially quiet campaign have been the supporters of President Coolidge. The president's backers have made few speeches and issued few statements, but have organized in practically every important center of the state and undoubtedly will show much power at the polls.

During the last few days Johnson's friends have enlivened the campaign by injecting the Japanese issue into it, and have attacked Mr. Coolidge's attitude on the question. No answer has been made thus far by the Coolidge leaders.

BANK MERGER GUARANTEES PROTECTION

CAPITAL NATIONAL OF ST. PAUL UNITES WITH MERCHANTS NATIONAL

LATTER BANK HAS DEPOSITS OF OVER FORTY MIL- LION

(By United Press)

St. Paul, May 5.—Endangered by the failure of the Capital Trust and Savings bank, the depositors in the Capital National bank, a sister institution, were guaranteed protection today by a merger of the latter with the Merchants National bank of St. Paul.

John D. Mitchell, former member of the federal reserve board and head of the other capital institution, said the Capital National was in an especially strong cash position, but directors felt a merger with the Merchants National bank at this time was the best means of fully protecting depositors.

A heavy run on the Capital National was anticipated this morning since the Capital Trust closed its doors Saturday.

Deposits of the Merchants National bank, known as the Weyerhaeuser bank because that pioneer lumber king of Wisconsin and Minnesota established it, now total more than $40,000,000. Officers and directors of the Merchants remained the same.

The merger in no way involves the Capital Trust and Savings bank which failed, having $5,000,000 deposits. R. C. Lilly is president of the Merchants National and George A. Price is chairman.

There were some reports of shortage of bread and meat in Buenos Aires, owing to the adherence of bakers and butchers to the walkout. The board of governors met this morning to prepare an address to President Alvaros, asking that the law be laid aside, at least temporarily.

In the meantime the president was preparing a message to congress on the situation which was expected to be delivered during the day.

FARMERS FAVOR McNARY-HAUGEN BILL, VOTE TAKEN

ALMOST UNANIMOUS IN ADVOCATING FARM RELIEF MEASURE

SENTIMENT IS SOUNDED IN 168 RURAL COMMUNITIES IN STATE

St. Paul, May 5.—Minnesota farmers are almost unanimously in favor of the McNary-Haugen bill.

This was revealed when the Minnesota Farm Bureau federation announced results of its poll on the measure, which is now before congress.

There now are listed 17,773 voters in favor of the bill, as against 102 against it, or 174 to 1.

The poll was taken through 168 rural Minnesota papers which published ballots at the request of the federation.

The poll has been in progress for about three weeks. The figures were announced by F. L. French, secretary of the Minnesota Farm Bureau federation.

The bill would create a $200,000,000 corporation, financed by the government to stabilize prices in all farm commodities.

The capital would be furnished by the government and directors of the corporation would be the secretary of agriculture and four others to be named by the president.

Commodities to be handled include wheat, flour, rice, corn, wool, cattle, sheep, swine and food products of swine and cattle.

Whenever the prices of a commodity falls below a fixed price to be set, the corporation will buy in the open market, holding the product and so increase the price. When prices are higher, the corporation would sell, both in the country and for export.

In addition the secretary of agriculture, if he finds that products being brought into this country, are seriously lowering prices, may declare an embargo tariff on that farm commodity.

TWO MURDERS, 3 BOMBINGS, 3 CAR DEATHS

ALSO NUMEROUS CASES OF LES- SER VIOLENCE WERE RECORDED

A FULL DOZEN ALSO INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE ACCI- DENTS

(By United Press)

Chicago, May 5.—Two murders, three bombings, three deaths due to automobile accidents, and numerous cases of lesser violence marked the week end for Chicago.

Frank Knight, Sr., shot and killed his son Frank Knight, Jr., 27, a few months after a "fatted calf" dinner. Knight got married against his father's wishes and was disowned. Mrs. Knight invited her son and his wife to a feast. During the mother's temporary absence, Knight and the young man got into a fight. "I shot to frighten him," Knight told police. "He was no good any how."

A bullet through the head killed the young man. He has a police record.

William Sedlacke, 24, was shot and killed as he was standing on the street. The shooting was done by several men as they drove by in an automobile. Labor trouble was the cause, police believe.

Two south side apartment houses were bombed because the owner permitted negroes to move in. Alexander Rosen and his wife, owners of the apartments, were slightly hurt while the building suffered serious damage. A third bomb destroyed the wall of the Checker Taxicab company garage. A dozen workers narrowly escaped injury. Labor troubles were blamed in this case also.

Two boys and one man were killed in automobile accidents. A dozen others were reported.

Abraham Billiten, wholesale drug store owner, reported to police he had been held up and gagged while a young army gathered up hundreds of cases of whiskey from his shop. He valued the loot at $185,000. Billiten and his partner are being questioned.

Numerous lesser indications of violence were reported.

TILTS CIGAR TOO HIGH; INHALES HIS HAT RIM

St. Paul, May 5.—Mike Costello, traffic roundman, felt the thrill of spring Saturday morning.

Driving down to work, a good cigar in his mouth, he tilted it up in the corner of his mouth, and let his car have the gas.

Then he became aware of smoke in unusual quantity and quality circling about his head. He sniffed again, and tore his cap off. Almost the whole crown had been burned off by a smoldering fire set by the cigar.

Ashland people are so interested in the Brainerd plan that a noted cattle breeder and millionaire, who has been a staunch advocate for pure bred stock and its introduction in dairying communities in much the same way as the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce plan, may come to Brainerd and be one of the speakers of the day. Wisconsin is one of the greatest dairy states in the Union and it would be fine to have as a speaker a man versed in dairying, breeding and other points. So great is the interest in Brainerd's "Better Sires Day" that the crowd of visitors expected is a great one.

Commodities to be handled include wheat, flour, rice, corn, wool, cattle, sheep, swine and food products of swine and cattle.

Whenever the prices of a commodity falls below a fixed price to be set, the corporation will buy in the open market, holding the product and so increase the price. When prices are higher, the corporation would sell, both in the country and for export.

In addition the secretary of agriculture, if he finds that products being brought into this country, are seriously lowering prices, may declare an embargo tariff on that farm commodity.

Wife Hurl'd Everything but Stove and Piano at Him, Husband Avers

St. Paul, May 5.—Almost everything but the rolling pin and the tea kettle is included in the missiles Murlin T. Busbey, 36, asserts his wife hurled at him. Saturday Mr. Busbey filed suit for divorce.

TWO MURDERS, 3 BOMBINGS, 3 CAR DEATHS

ALSO NUMEROUS CASES OF LES- SER VIOLENCE WERE RECORDED

A FULL DOZEN ALSO INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE ACCI- DENTS

(By United Press)
Chicago, May 5.—Two murders, three bombings, three deaths due to automobile accidents, and numerous cases of lesser violence marked the week end for Chicago.

Frank Knight, Sr., shot and killed his son Frank Knight, Jr., 27, a few months after a "fatted calf" dinner. Knight got married against his father's wishes and was disowned. Mrs. Knight invited her son and his wife to a feast. During the mother's temporary absence, Knight and the young man got into a fight.

"I shot to frighten him," Knight told police. "He was no good any how."

A bullet through the head killed the young man. He has a police record.

William Sedlacke, 24, was shot and killed as he was standing on the street. The shooting was done by several men as they drove by in an automobile. Labor trouble was the cause, police believe.

Two south side apartment houses were bombed because the owner permitted negroes to move in. Alexander Rosen and his wife, owners of the apartments, were slightly hurt while the building suffered serious damage.

A third bomb destroyed the wall of the Checker Taxicab company garage. A dozen workers narrowly escaped injury. Labor troubles were blamed in this case also.

Two boys and one man were killed in automobile accidents. A dozen others were reported.

Abraham Billiten, wholesale drug store owner, reported to police he had been held up and gagged while a young army gathered up hundreds of cases of whiskey from his shop. He valued the loot at $185,000. Billiten and his partner are being questioned.

Numerous lesser indications of violence were reported.

TILTS CIGAR TOO HIGH; INHALES HIS HAT RIM

St. Paul, May 5.—Mike Costello, traffic roundsman, felt the thrill of spring Saturday morning. Driving down to work, a good cigar in his mouth, he tilted it up in the corner of his mouth, and let his car have the gas.

Then he became aware of smoke in unusual quantity and quality circling about his head. He sniffed again, and tore his cap off. Almost the whole crown had been burned off by a smoldering fire set by the cigar.

2 MINOR OUTBREAKS OF HOOF AND MOUTH

(By United Press)
San Francisco, May 5.—Two minor outbreaks of hoof and mouth disease in Los Angeles county were the only reverses suffered by the state and federal forces fighting the epidemic over the week end, it was announced today.

The infection involved 64 head of cattle, all in previously ravaged areas.

Continued success in wiping out the infection in other parts of the state was reported by state and federal officials.

PIKE LOSES SUIT
AGAINST STATE OF NORTH DAKOTA

St. Paul, May 5.—Ruling that suit was brought against the wrong defendant, District Judge J. W. Boerner late Saturday granted a motion of attorneys of the Bank of North Dakota for dismissal of the case instituted against it by Frederick A. Pike, St. Paul attorney.

Mr. Pike sued the state of North Dakota, doing business as the Bank of North Dakota, for $10,000 alleged to be the balance due him for professional services.

Today Mr. Pike stated that he expects his attorneys will advise him to make a motion for a new trial.

In all probability, if the motion for a new trial is denied, the case will be appealed to the state supreme court.

Judge Boerner ruled that Mr. Pike should have brought suit against the North Dakota Industrial commission, and held that the meeting in the McKenzie hotel at Bismarck, April 3, 1919, attended by Gov. Lynn J. Frazier, J. N. Hagen, commissioner of agriculture, and William Lemke, at which it was agreed to hire Mr. Pike as attorney, was not a regular or official meeting of the industrial commission because of the absence of William Langer, attorney general, and because of that fact the hiring of Mr. Pike was invalid.

MINNESOTA'S VENICE

By DONALD HOUGH

The romantic and picturesque Venice has for centuries captured the imagination of the civilized world. The graceful gondolas, the colorful architecture, the treasures of art have contributed no more to the lure of this waterway city than has the abstract idea of a city whose streets are canals; whose vehicles are boats.

In much the same way has the Superior National Forest, in North-eastern Minnesota, and the Quetico provincial forest, Ontario, which adjoins it on the north, gained nationwide recognition as the Venice of America. Its streets are long, crooked lakes, narrow connecting channels, and rivers; its houses are the peaked spruce forests and the serried ranks of pine that border the waterways; its gondolas are the graceful adaptations of the canoe of the Indian; its inhabitants are moose and deer, bear, and a myriad of smaller animals.

It is particularly fitting that this should be called the Venice of America. For it is not symbolic of the two civilizations that the one should be an ancient and colorful city, and the other a rugged forest, reflecting a pine tossed skyline in unfouled waters.

It is a matter of interest that this vast waterway labyrinth, comprising nearly three million acres, is traversable only by canoe; that the administration of the U. S. Forest Service, and of the Canadian Forest Service in the Quetico park region adjoining it on the north, are based on the use of the canoe as the standard of transportation. In three places, fingers of civilization point at the Forest, but from the ends of these, the canoes must be brought into play by the traveller, whether he wants to cruise aimlessly through the woods, or to travel across the region.

It is not a low or swampy region, as so many well watered districts are. The terrain is mostly solid rock. The shores of the lakes are often long ledges of rock which slip smoothly into the water; the thousands of islands which dot them are usually just big boulders, covered with mosses and pine trees. The water is clear and cold, and the lakes are deep and full of fish, principally lake trout, pike, pickerel and black bass. The surrounding forests are, in the northern part of the forest, immense stands of virgin Norway pine, while in the southern part the woods, beautiful in their gradations of green, are composed of mixed varieties: spruce, jackpine and balsam; aspen and birch.

The region is one of the last stands of the moose in the United States, and the habitat of thousands of deer. Here the black bear lives; and the beaver, the most interesting animal of the woods, is found throughout with his dams and his queer houses, his feats of engineering and lumbering.

The U. S. forest service guards the region against fire by means of lookout stations situated at various points throughout the forest. These are connected to headquarters at Ely, Minnesota, by lone telephone wires, running from tree to tree through the woods. Near each tower is a cabin, called a ranger station. Here lives the lookout, who spends much of his time on his tower, watching for smoke. When fire is discovered, the location is given to headquarters, and as soon as possible a fleet of canoes, the fire department of the north, with full fire-fighting equipment, hurries to the scene. These lookout men, and the rangers of the forest service, lead romantic lives, sequestered, as they are, many miles from the nearest town. Their cabins are in most cases reached only by canoe—sometimes by several days journey across the lakes, down the rivers, and over the portages.

The canoes not only of the forest service, but of the tourist, traverse the forest each summer, for this is not only a large and important forest preserve, but is the principal recreation ground of the middle west, and the last bit of wilderness between Maine and the Rocky Mountains.

Thousands of canoeists visit the forest annually. Last year they came from thirty-one states and four foreign countries to see this Venice of Minnesota—a land of canoes, in a land of Ten Thousand Lakes.

Proved He Could Come Back

By CHARLES E. BAXTER

"SORRY, Adler, but Mr. Simpson thinks you're too old to be of service to us any more. You ought to be able to get along on your half-pay pension."

It was not that that was troubling Adler. For thirty years had he been watchman for the Vine & Mallett company, and he was still strong and vigorous. And Mr. Mallett would never have laid him off but for Simpson, the new manager of the shipping department.

It was a blow! Simpson, an underpaid young clerk, nothing more, and Mr. Mallett had chosen to take his word for it that Adler was too old. He confided his grievance to his friend Barnett, the big packing hand. "I guess that Simpson ain't too straight," said Barnett. "I guess if you hadn't been so careful tallying what came in and what went out, particularly what went out, you'd be in the job today instead of this new man Simpson's got," he added.

Adler mullied over this remark. The new man certainly hadn't the watchman stamp—the city thug's more likely. The more he looked at him the less old Adler liked him. "Say, Adler, forgotten you're not here any more?" sneered Simpson next day at noon, when he went in to chat with Barnett.

Old Adler bridled. Thirty years—and now he was to be hounded off the premises!

There was a cellar next door to the Vine and Mallett building, once used for storing coal, but now disused and empty. That evening, after it had grown dark, old Adler crept quickly down the steps and ran to the little dirty pane of glass that gave upon the side-grating, from which he could see the side and back of the Adler building. "He saw the new watchman make his rounds. After a while he saw two men issue out of the shadows and hold a conference with him. They disappeared, and presently a truck drew up some distance away, and one of the two men reappeared.

Then, out of the rear entrance, old Adler saw the watchman and one of the other figures appear, carrying something. It was a bale of silk. Running to the front entrance of the cellar Adler spied the truck. The bale was lifted into it.

The two men returned to the factory, leaving the one man in the truck. Three minutes later they returned with another bale. Old Adler crept softly toward the truck where the single watchman was seated, his back toward him. Raising the bullet of wood that he had taken from the cellar, he brought it down with just the right degree of force on the watchman's head. The man sagged forward.

Picking him up in his arms, old Adler laid him gently down in the cellar. He knew it would be an hour before he awakened.

Then, taking his place, he sat crouching in the darkness beside the truck, while one by one the bales of silk were brought out and laid in the truck.

"Guess that's as much as she'll hold," grinned one of the men. "It's a mighty good thing that snooping old Adler ain't around—hey, Bill?" The speaker was the new watchman. His companion Adler recognized as Simpson.

"Mighty good!" Adler jeered, and brought down his billet flat on the watchman's head.

With a cry Simpson leaped at him. A desperate struggle took place, Simpson trying with all his might to draw his gun, and Adler clinging to him. For fully two minutes they fought.

Then old Adler felt his strength giving out. He saw Simpson's savage grin as he drew the gun, he heard the discharge, and—

He opened his eyes in a room in the hospital. A nurse was standing at his bedside. Near her was another man.

"He's come to now," he heard her say.

Mallett was standing at old Adler's bedside.

"Well, Adler, come to, hey?" he asked. "That's splendid work you did. We've got the three of them, though if your head hadn't been as tough as old hickory it wouldn't have turned Simpson's bullet."

"Do I get my job back?" asked Adler.

"You surely do, and I'm going to propose a bonus of a thousand dollars for you to the directors. And I guess you're good for a great many years yet, Adler."

George's Cross

The outbound car, says a London newspaper, was crowded to the doors. The woman had a child in her arms who was either whining or bawling all the time. She was doing her best to quiet it, but without success, and the audible comments of the other passengers regarding babies in general and that baby in particular did not soothe the mother's growing irritation. Finally the car reached George's Cross and the conductor, putting his head in the door, loudly cried out the name of the place: "George's Cross! George's Cross!"

"Of course he's cross," cried the mother with flashing eyes, "and so would you be if you were cutting your back teeth."—Electric News.

The Task Confided to Her

By MYRA CURTIS LANE

"YOU'LL go back to Frank now, Laura?"

Laura Curtis shook her head obstinately. Her patient mother sighed. It was all so sad and so bitter.

Laura and Frank had been married five years. Mr. and Mrs. Weatherley had thought the couple happy enough. Then Laura had come home to them and announced her determination to leave her husband. There had been another woman.

"But if he's given her up, dear?" her mother had remonstrated.

"It makes no difference. He has broken his vows to me. I am through with him forever," Laura answered.

And from this attitude she could not be moved. "It's no use telling me all men are like that," she said. "You and father have always lived happily together, and Frank could have been faithful to me just as father has been to you."

The little mother sighed again and shook her head. But there was no answering this logic. And then, two weeks after Laura's return, her father fell ill.

It was heart trouble and there was little hope from the first. The days went by and he grew steadily weaker.

On the evening of his death he called his daughter alone to his bedside.

"My wooden case," he whispered to the girl. "The one I keep my legal papers in."

Laura nodded to show she understood.

"There are private papers and things in it I always meant to destroy, but I never got around to it. Now I can't. I want you to take this key, open it, and go through every paper and letter after I'm dead. Promise me."

Laura promised. "You'll destroy everything that's obviously private," her father went on. "I trust you, little girl. Good-by." He sank into a coma and three hours afterward he died.

The day after the funeral Laura took the key and opened the wooden case. It was stuffed full of legal papers relating to old law cases that her father had had before he retired. Faithfully Laura went through these one by one, putting aside for burning everything that seemed of a private nature.

She had almost come to the end when a big bundle of letters tumbled out. She picked them up. The writing was yellow with age. She opened one and began to read.

It was a love-letter from a woman to a man—no name was given for it began, "My darling."

She opened another and another. The letters moved her strangely. The man was married, married unhappily like herself, only it was the man who seemed to be faithless.

Then toward the end she came upon a letter to her father's mother and was with the rest. And suddenly she understood and she gasped with horror at the discovery. Her father was the faithless husband—her father, who had always lived with her mother so happily.

Mechanically she opened this letter: "This is to say good-by," he wrote. "My wife knows everything and has decided to forgive. We can never mean much to each other, but we have our baby, Laura, and for her sake the sacrifice must be made on both sides. We shall never meet again, but my love will always follow you."

A dreadful, despairing letter. Laura wept. Then she carefully reduced the whole bundle to ashes. So this was the task that her father had confided to her!

Her father and her mother! What must it have cost them both to make that bitter sacrifice! And she had never dreamed but that they were happy together. She had contrasted them with herself and Frank.

But now a new thought came to her. Had her father deliberately planned that she should know of this—in order to influence her? Was it a message from the dead?

And in her tears she felt all her bitterness dissolving.

She went to where the little, patient mother was sitting in her room. She knelt down in front of her and put her arms about her. "Mother, I've changed my mind," she said. "I'm going back to Frank. I'm going to forgive. I've become wiser."

1924 vs. 1913

IN THE advertising columns of this paper, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has stated repeatedly that the price of gasoline is low, and particularly so by comparison with the price of other products.

To confirm the truth of these statements, your critical attention is directed to the table below compiled from statistics of the United States Bureau of Labor and Department of Commerce, showing the price level of various commodities in January, 1924, as compared with that of 1913—taking the latter year as 100:

Gasoline	97.0
Flour	135.2
Potatoes	140.2
Farm Products	144.0
Milk	155.5
Butter	168.7
House Furnishing Goods	176.0
Building Material	181.0
Sugar	196.3
Cloth and Clothing	200.0
Average for all commodities	151

The average man has come to accept the fluctuation in the prices of milk, butter, sugar, potatoes, and like products, as natural. This acceptance is so well-established and time-honored as to be a prosaic incident.

The buying of gasoline is relatively a new experience.

The economical production of gasoline requires large investments—which are possible only with big institutions of vast capitalization. Because of this, the petroleum industry has come in for criticism that does not fall to the lot of other industries.

The above bulletin proves conclusively that the price of gasoline is low and that the dollar in 1924 will buy more gasoline than it could in 1913. This demonstrates the efficiency of the petroleum industry, in which the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is proud of its position as a leader.

This Company has earned its leadership by the every-day practice of fairness, equity and justice to all—consumer, employee and competitor—in such a manner as to have gained the confidence, respect and esteem of the thirty million people of the Middle West.

PUBLICITY GIVEN "BETTER SIRE'S DAY"

OUTSIDE papers are giving "Better Sires Day," in Brainerd May 10th, much publicity. Using a two column heading, front page, "Brainerd Chamber of Commerce Gives Pure Bred Sires for Use by Farmers," the St. Cloud Journal-Press of May 3rd, carried a half column article.

The Bemidji Daily Pioneer of May 3rd carried a half column article referring to "Better Sires Day" in Brainerd.

The Pillager Herald of May 2 carried a half column next to its editorials.

The St. Paul Pioneer Press Sunday edition gave prominence to a half column story on "Better Sires Day."

Locally all papers have accorded much publicity and there is evidence that the whole state is becoming aware of the important day to be featured in Brainerd.

The Brainerd Dispatch will further signalize the day by printing a special "Better Sires Day" daily and weekly edition. It will contain much of value in relation to better dairy methods. An important thing will be the publication of the entire list of names of bankers and other business men, professional men, etc., who by their donations made possible the fund used by the Chamber of Commerce to purchase the sires. The edition will be worthy of keeping as a souvenir of this occasion, as showing the high spirit of cooperation revealed between town and countryside.

Further publicity is being secured by sending invitations to be present Saturday and addressing the same to the Chambers of Commerce and Commercial clubs of all Minnesota, North Dakota and some of Wisconsin. There is more to "Better Sires Day" than the mere presentation of 25 yearling bulls, Holsteins and Guernseys, to farmer organizations for use. The principle involved in the whole matter is the noteworthy one, that if the farming community thrives, we shall all feel the effects of it. Dairying is of such tremendous importance in this section of the 10,000 lakes region that the "Better Sires" movement will so increase the farmer's ultimate revenues as to eventually equal an industrial payday.

It carries with it cow testing, greater care of the dairy herd, weeding out of poor cows, in fact it puts dairying on a business-like basis. The farmer, instead of following a system uncertain in results, specializes dairying until it becomes as certain in results as any manufacturing or mercantile business. A steady flow of cream checks means ready money. Improvement of the dairy herd means more money for the farmer.

DISPENSE WITH BILLBOARD ADVERTISING

MANY large firms who have been users of billboards, have sensed the disapproval of the public and have decided to dispense with such advertising. It seems that the advertising, in many cases, produced a spirit of resentment, for the motorist found his view of natural scenery obstructed by a painted board. And then again, more people and at less expense can be reached through the medium of the press than through painted boards.

Among the large firms to change from billboard to newspaper advertising are many of the largest and best known tire companies, Standard Oil company and other oil companies, a number of packing company concerns, various baking companies, yeast companies, etc.

Newspapers also offer a check-up on advertising results. A newspaper is read by all people, while a billboard, oftentimes set near a busy corner or turn in the road, is not read by the motorist unless he feels disposed and is certainly not seen by the driver who keeps his eyes glued on road or busy street.

Before the state highway commission wiped out signs on its right of way, many a driver was confused by the multiplicity of signs at a junction point by corner and had to scan a lot of other signs before locating the highway sign. True, signs may still be erected off the right of way on ground leased, but Minnesota highway commission set them back so as not to interfere with the driver's vision of the road.

GAVE A FINE TRIBUTE

A GREAT many regard the tribute paid to Calvin Coolidge by Nathaniel Elsborg, retiring president of the National Republican club of New York, as the finest, truest and most appropriate that has been rendered since Mr. Coolidge entered public life. It is terse and to the point.

Characterizing President Coolidge as "a man of plain living and high thinking, of dry humor and hard-headed honesty," Mr. Elsborg said: "Here is a man with none of the arts or graces which have been deemed part of the necessary capital for a political career; a man who in a vocal age is only vocal when real occasions make a demand for it; a man with neither the dramatic touch which other leaders have possessed, nor the captivating personality or the appealing eloquence which have helped other men to power. He is strong because while his face is lifted to the stars he keeps his feet firmly planted on the ground."

The people of the United States are very weary of pomp and panoply, hand-shaking, baby-kissing, and all the arts and wiles of the political demagogue. They are ready for sterling integrity in administration and conscientious and painstaking effort to run the government engine at the highest efficiency without any dare-devil stunts and appeals to hysteria. They want a president who is just the sort of man that Mr. Elsborg has pictured and President Coolidge is just that sort of man.

U. S. POLICIES HELD BY VETERANS

WORLD war veterans have taken out 560,872 government insurance policies, totaling $2,989,660,587.42 in value, it was reported by the veterans bureau, says the Washington Post in a comprehensive review of such activities. Of this number, 212,166 policies, worth $1,638,769,387 are war risk insurance policies and 348,706 worth $1,350,891,150.42 are United States government life policies. The former policies are being gradually changed into the latter, which are more permanent.

The bureau is at present hospitalizing about 23,914 veterans, of whom 9,718 are tuberculosis patients, 9,559 neuro-psychiatric patients and 4,637 general and surgical patients. All are in government hospitals except 5,366, who are in contact hospitals.

It was reported that 327,424 veterans applied for vocational training; 171,905 actually entered training, 65,381 have been rehabilitated and 60,664 are still in training.

WRITER ESCAPES DEATH IN RUSSIA

American Says Trotsky Plans New Revolt.

Imprisoned in Moscow for nearly six weeks and under sentence to be shot for being a spy against the soviet government, Richard Eaton, a youthful American newspaper man, with many acquaintances in Washington, is free today because he had the foresight to conceal some money in his shoe, with which he bribed a prison guard to carry a message to British friends. The latter effected his release.

Eaton, who now is in Washington completing a vacation of about three months, told of his brief but eventful visit into Russia. As a correspondent of the London Daily Mail and Le Matin of Paris, he succeeded in getting in and out of Petrograd, now Leningrad, and went to Moscow. Awakened from his sleep at two o'clock one morning in June of last year, he was confronted by two soldiers, who carried a blank warrant for his arrest. Stripped of all personal belongings, he was taken to the "dog kennel," a small jail housing 35 prisoners at the time in a tiny room with no windows.

Sentenced by Woman.

"I was placed in solitary confinement," he related, "and was fed on black bread with one large dish of herring soup from which all the prisoners ate. Then after a few days I was taken before Simanov, the real chief of the foreign department of the Cheka, the secret society which is responsible for the many acts of terrorism which have horrified the world. She is a Russian woman less than thirty years old, a beautiful blonde, with innocent gray-blue eyes. She conducts all the important interrogations and is merciless in her demands for punishment."

"During my examination I denied being an English spy. She at once said in Russian to an assistant (they thought I only spoke German), 'he must be shot.'"

"So, charged with being a spy and sentenced to death, I was sent to the famous Butyrki prison, where I found that on the day I was arrested the Cheka had arrested 400 priests and eight of the nine archbishops of Moscow. Three hundred priests already were in the prison. There were prisoners for all sorts of queer offenses—one charged with being a counter-revolutionist because he went to church every Sunday."

Bribed Guard to Aid Him.

"After a long stay here I bribed a guard to carry a note to some British friends in Moscow and then I was taken to the Loubianker, within which is another prison known as the Vecheka, or 'madhouse.' Only prisoners sentenced to death are placed here. I was put in a cell with five other persons, one a priest, who prayed constantly for twenty-four hours. At the end of this period I was released, but was escorted to the frontier by two Russian soldiers with rifles and fixed bayonets."

Eaton declared a revolution in Russia is imminent. Trotsky, he said, fell in love with a beautiful Russian woman, Mlle. Naumoff, and it was his plan to procure from every European government a passport and a small pension, so that he and his sweetheart could live in peace. The soviet found out his plan and now he is in supposed exile, while in reality, according to Eaton, he is in south Russia rounding up an army of Cossacks to overthrow the present government.

Bolshevik a Queer Person.

"They all want a finger in the pie," Eaton said. "The defection of Trotsky is more important than the death of Lenin."

Living conditions in Moscow, Eaton continued, are about the same as in Washington, if one has the money. The highest legal salary paid is about $30 a month, and ordinary clerical positions bring about $10. "You can't eat meat every day on a salary of that size," he commented.

The Bolshevik is a queer person. "You've got to know him and deal with him accordingly. When I was arrested I was cross-examined for ten minutes on the question of being a titled American prince or duke, and at the end of that time this fellow still believed it. But it was not until he went into another room and found that America hasn't any nobility that he finally believed me."

Eaton arrived in Washington about three months ago and went direct to California for a rest. He was born in Seattle, Wash., but has spent much of his time in Europe. In 1922 he was Washington correspondent of the Westminster Gazette.

"Land of Fire" Has

Heavy Fall of Snow

Tierra del Fuego means "Land of Fire," but the past year, at least, it has belied its name, according to Consul A. C. Brady at Punta Arenas, Chili, who says the severest winter in many years has been experienced the last season in Chili and Argentine Patagonia and Tierra del Fuego.

Much snow has fallen and freezing temperatures have prevailed for long periods since early June. In Punta Arenas the lowest temperature was 6 degrees above zero, but camps in tributary territory have reported 5 to 12 degrees below. Heavy losses of sheep are feared. After a hard winter many animals die.

SAFE MUST STAND MANY HARD TESTS

Modern Strongbox Gets Rough Treatment.

There must be no doubt about a safe. Therefore a safe that is being tested at the Underwriters' Laboratories has to undergo some pretty severe usage. If it does not weaken, says Mr. Harry Chase Brearley in a Symbol of Safety, it wins a label of utter trustworthiness.

First the safe is submitted to the "explosion test." Inside are magazines and loose papers and a recording thermometer. A photograph is taken of them. Then the doors are closed, and the safe is enveloped in flames. In less than three minutes the temperature exceeds a thousand degrees; and in 15 minutes it has reached seventeen hundred degrees. Those are extreme conflagration conditions.

For the second test the safe is placed in a furnace that consists of a box of thick masonry and that is heated with four rows of blast burners. After 20 minutes an observer looking through a peep hole at the back of the furnace can see the large sheet of steel that forms the back of the safe is beginning to show signs of distortion. That is only natural. Thirty minutes; tiny spurts of flame are issuing from joints in the safe from the generation of gases within the insulation. It is indicative of good design that they can escape without doing damage. Forty minutes, and the steel knob of the combination lock is brilliant red; one hour, and the entire surface of the safe is brilliant red. If the safe has been submitted for the highest classification it is subjected to an inferno of ever-increasing intensity for three hours longer; but at the end of the four hours the heat inside as indicated by a recording instrument connected with an external switch-board must not be sufficient to injure the most delicate papers on the shelves.

The "drop test" is even more spectacular. Toward the end of an hour's heating, which the safe must undergo for this test, eight men in overalls stand by at their stations like trained gun crews. Blocks and tackles are all set to open the wall door of the furnace and to roll out the bottom truck on which the red hot safe rests. The engineer at the instruments takes a last reading of temperatures, jots them down and puts his mouth to the speaking tube. "Ready!" he calls.

Two asbestos-gloved men disconnect the recording instruments and withdraw them white hot from the furnace wall holes.

"Ten seconds!" shouts an engineer.

"Five!"

A man grasps a lever.

"Go!"

The flames go out with a pop. There is a thud as a man rams a timber against the door prop. The heavy door opens. Workmen, crouching to protect their faces from the heat, quickly hook the wheeled truck and draw it forth; then they raise the safe high in air until it is plumb above a massive concrete block set flush with the flooring of the yard and covered with a heap of loose bricks. The safe is dropped and, whizzing down from

275 FANS AT THE ATHLETIC SHOW OF LEGION

ENTERTAINED BY FOUR BOXING
EXHIBITIONS SATURDAY EVENING

SPECTATORS INCLUDED A NUM-BER OF ENTHUSIASTIC
LADY FANS

About two hundred and seventy-five fans attended the athletic show staged on Saturday evening at Elks hall by the local post of the American Legion, and were entertained by four very interesting boxing exhibitions.

The first was between two of Brainerd's coming boxers, youthful artists weighing about 110 pounds, who put on three rounds of clever boxing for boys of their age.

The second exhibition was between Sammy Greer, local amateur welterweight, and Mike Sartwell, of Minneapolis. Greer showed considerable class and has a great deal of promise. Sartwell also put up a good exhibition.

Eddie Imgrund, local artist, and Kid Shubert of St. Paul staged the third number on the program, both putting up a very satisfactory exhibition.

The fourth and principal exhibition of the evening was between Tommy Tibbetts, of Bemidji, 133 pound former A. E. F. boxer and runner-up for the A. E. F. championship, and Irish Kennedy, amateur champion in the welterweight class, of St. Paul. Fans were unanimous in agreeing that this was one of the cleanest and fastest bouts ever witnessed in the city. The contenders were very evenly matched and put up a clever exhibition of their art. It would have been hard to judge which was the better boxer.

The show was conducted in a very satisfactory and orderly manner by the American Legion, and was handled with considerable credit to the committee in charge. There were a number of ladies in the audience who were as enthusiastic over the exhibitions as the most ardent male fans. The Legion plans to put on a number of similar events, of an even better calibre during the season.

SLICK GIRL BANDIT'S CLEVER RUSE TRICKS MAN IN BUSY STREET

Chicago, May 5.—The "promenade bandit" has made her appearance.

Harold Brophy, 19, clerk at the Commonwealth Edison Co., was sauntering along Michigan boulevard in the afternoon promenade of fashionable when a vivacious, handsomely attired girl walked up to him and said:

"Give me your money. Quick, or I'll scream."

Bewildered, Brophy automatically drew a dollar from his pocket.

"All of your money," snapped the girl. "Be quick or I'll scream and there's a cop right at the corner."

Brophy emptied his pockets of $23.26. The girl handed back the 26 cents, gave him a sweet smile and vanished in the crowd. Brophy later explained to police:

"If I had refused and she had screamed and charged me with insulting her, how much chance would I have had in court against a pretty girl?"

The Noisy Mr. Mails

Walter Mails, the bug southpaw, once pitching in the Pacific Coast league, started the season auspiciously with an explosive run-in with Duffy Lewis, manager of Salt Lake. They had to call the cops.

BUSH HURLED GREAT BALL ON SATURDAY

The Yankees defeated Washington 5 to 4 Saturday and went into the lead in the pennant race of the American League. In the seventh inning Washington took so kindly to Jones' delivery that they hammered him out of the box.

Joe Bush was called and as usual, delivered, and won the game. Bush worked out of a tight pinch in the ninth when the Senators had runners perched on first and second with one out. Bush, two times at bat, rapped out two hits and also had one assist to his credit. Seven hits were made off Jones in six innings, with none out in the seventh. But one hit was made off Bush in three innings he pitched.

FRENCH YOUTH, 19 YEARS OLD, HAILED AS SECOND TILDEN

Young Rene Lacoste is being hailed in European tennis circles as the most probable successor to William Tilden as monarch of the courts.

Lacoste has just ended a brilliant season at the fashionable resorts abroad and London and Paris critics are singing his praises in extravagant terms.

Lacoste, who is only 19 years old, was here with the French Davis cup team last summer, but did not play impressively. Evidently he has improved considerably.

Former Saints Star

Chicago, May 5.—Tom Sheehan, former St. Paul association star, scored his fourth straight victory over the Cubs yesterday for Cincinnati. Home runs by Sam Bohne and Bubbles Hargrave, also St. Paul players in other days, assisted materially in the victory. Bohne had two and Hargrave one.

SLACKER DRIVE PUTS NEW TAGS ON AUTOS

STATEWIDE TAX ENFORCEMENT THIS SPRING BRINGING EF- FECTIVE RESULTS

Automobiles without 1924 "tags" are seldom seen now, according to reports from most parts of the state, due to the activities of sheriffs and local police, assisted by field men of the Minnesota highway department, says a highway bulletin this week.

Reasons for the effective clean-up week being waged against tax slackers, the bulletin says, include these: Sheriffs and police officials generally are rounding up would-be tax dodgers without unnecessary delays. Newspapers giving warnings have saved many readers penalties and others from prosecution with fines and costs.

Moral support is being lent by probably 9 out of 10 car owners who have complied with the law and want to see the tenth fellows made to do their part toward better highways.

Minneapolis and St. Paul police are "tagging" unlicensed cars and taking owners into court, and the police in smaller cities and towns are making like creditable showings.

Courts are imposing heavier penalties, refusing excuses after 90 days were allowed to obtain new tags, and assessing slackers for the extra collection costs incurred in their cases.

Finally, owners who escaped taxation in other years are finding that back taxes and penalties must be paid in full before new plates can be issued, and all under pain of tax lien sale if necessary.

A system of checking cars and trucks through 1923 registrations is enabling the officials to trace many machines on which taxes are delinquent, it was announced, and owners of them are facing early prosecutions. The prediction was made that this year department registration records will cover virtually every motor vehicle in the state and 100 per cent enforcement of the tax law will then be assured.

BITTER CAMPAIGN FOR MAYORALTY

NELSON AND SIEGEL GO INTO HOME STRETCH IN ST. PAUL TODAY

(By United Press)
St. Paul, May 5.—Betting was mostly even money today as Mayor Arthur Nelson and George L. Siegel went into the home stretch of a most bitter campaign for the mayorship of St. Paul.

A record municipal vote is expected tomorrow. Siegel is a labor candidate. There was still some two to one Nelson money about town, but many believed these odds were being given by the Nelson supporters for the psychological effect. Most of the betting was at even money.

ASK APPROVAL OF P. T. A. OF PRESENT PROHIBITION LAWS

(By United Press)
St. Paul, May 5.—The national congress of mothers and parent-teachers associations will be asked to go on record in favor of the present prohibition laws.

This was disclosed at the opening of the 28th annual convention here today. Mrs. William Tilton, chairman of the legislative department of the association presented the proposed resolution to the board of managers.

Twenty-six states were represented at the opening.

What a cast! What a story! Bebe Daniels, Ernest Torrence, Noah Beery and Lloyd Hughes featured in the Zane Grey Paramount production, "The Heritage of the Desert," which is packing them in at the Lyceum theatre where it was shown for the first time last evening.

Now to the story:
A tale of the West at its wildest and woolliest. There's thrills, comedy, a pleasing love theme and big scenes throughout. With the killing of Snap, the dissolute son of August Naab of "The Oasis" ranch, the long-kindling feud between cattlemen and rustlers breaks into flame. It's a battle to the death—

with Navajo Indians collecting scalps for the ranchers. The town of White Sage is but a thing of the past—Holderiness and his reign of terror are but memories—great things have started in the west—ambitions are about to be realized. The irrigation waters, the life-blood of the desert, on "The Oasis" have been saved—fertility is about to come to the land. But why go on? Zane Grey tells it as only he can—he knows the West, and you will, too, after seeing "The Heritage of the Desert" at the Lyceum tonight or Tuesday, and by all means don't miss it.

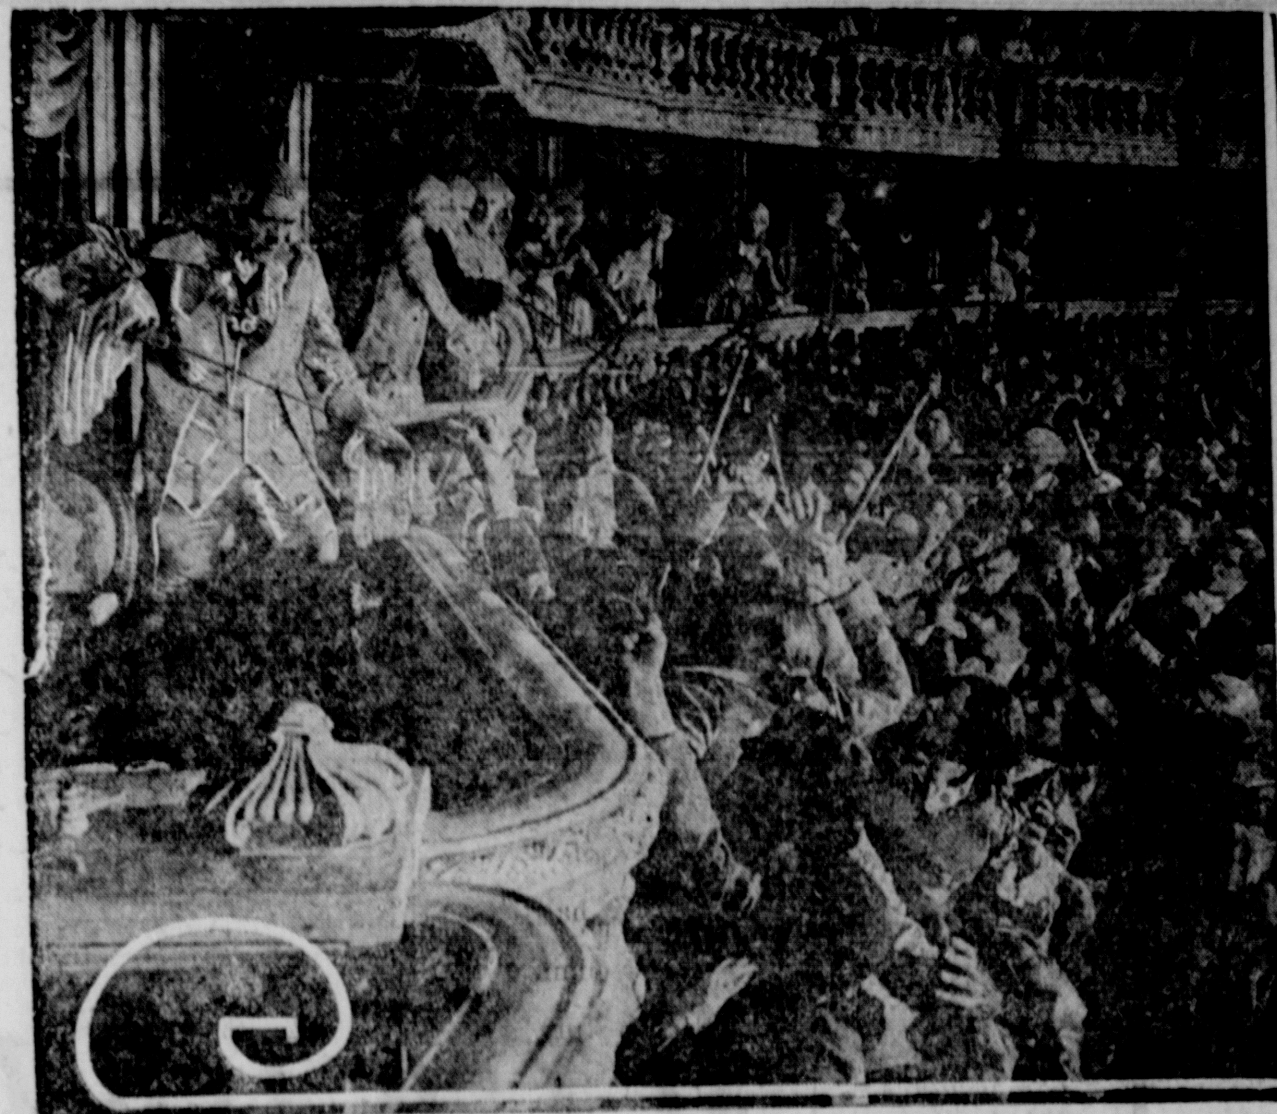

SUPREME COURT DECISION ON INCOME TAX

Washington, May 5.—The United States supreme court today held that the income tax applies to the income of a citizen of the United States who lives abroad even though the property from which the income is derived is also situated abroad.

George W. Cook, American citizen residing at Mexico City, brought suit to recover taxes paid under protest but lower courts decided the income tax had been properly levied. He appealed to the supreme court.

Cook held that since his property was all in Mexico it was thus beyond the sovereignty of the United States and was not taxable by the United States.

London, May 5.—King George has signed the 12-mile treaty agreement with the United States and Great Britain is ready to exchange ratification, it was learned today.

Boy and Dog

In response to an appeal from a boy whose pet dog had been run over and killed by a careless automobile driver, the News, Fall River, Mass., comments editorially:

A boy and his dog! A combination unequalled anywhere on the face of God's green earth. A happy, care-free boy, and a happy, alert, tall-wagging dog, expectant of a good romp to come. There is a kinship between the two too deep for mere grown-ups to get or to explain. A boy and his dog understand each other. They run and laugh and yell and bark, each feeling the urge to express his exuberance, his joy in life, in his own way.

A boy who never owned a dog has an incomplete boyhood. A dog who doesn't know some boy intimately misses half his life. No wonder the dogs owned exclusively by grown-ups so soon get a grown-up grouch.

But Robert wanted us to write about men who drive "so bad" that they kill "puppies." There are far too many such men, Robert, and a man who drives carelessly and kills a puppy usually drives so carelessly that he endangers the lives of all the boys and girls and men and women, who have just as much right on the streets and roads as he has. And that man, Robert, would be just as angry and just as sorry as you are today if somebody ran over his dog.

When we haven't time or space to write about a boy and his dog, Robert, the News will be a far different paper from the News you know.—Our Dumb Animals.

HELD DISTRICT CONVENTION HERE

Farmer-Labor Clubs of Sixth Congressional District Convened in City Sunday

LASTED MORNING TO MIDNIGHT

Resolution Adopted Endorsing No Candidate For Congress

Members of the Farmer-Labor clubs of the Sixth district held their district convention on Sunday at the Trades and Labor hall, Brainerd, for the purpose of endorsing a candidate for congress from this district. The convention opened at 10:30 o'clock in the morning and was not adjourned until about eleven o'clock in the evening. It was reported as a most interesting session, a number of heated debates arising over various resolutions presented.

The morning session was given over to the question of credentials. It was decided that the meeting should be for members only, and the permanent organization was perfected with Wilfred Canan as chairman before the noon recess was taken.

The first order of business in the afternoon was the action taken upon the articles of association, each article being acted upon separately, and later adopted as a whole with only two minor changes. The first of these was a change in Article 8, to read that committeemen be authorized to select an alternate to act in their places, the other that at the district convention a quorum be constituted of no less than seven of counties in the district.

The order of business was halted by a request that the convention seat Carl Parsons and a Mr. Vanderberg, from the twin cities, who declined to indicate their purpose in attending the convention. Being refused admission, these men had federation friends inside the convention, by virtue of having joined the club the day previous, and started to work from the outside, deciding to bring the federation issue on the floor by a resolution which would cause the clubs to affiliate with the federation, in violation of the articles of association already adopted, in that no provision is made for an affiliation with the federation on the basis required by the former.

Attention was immediately called to the importance of the resolution, and the federationists began to show their hand, gaining the floor in support of the resolution, and making it necessary for the chairman to explain the intention and purpose of the federation fully, which resulted in a secret ballot being taken after a three hours debate, returns of which were 67 opposed to the resolution and 38 favoring it.

The rest of the business came in the form of a resolution not to endorse any candidate for congress, though such an endorsement was the purpose for which the meeting was called. There are five candidates in the field for this nomination, and all working on the delegates, influencing them to support a resolution opposing endorsement, but after such a resolution had been passed, and the delegates realized that they had no way of knowing who the candidates were or for what they stand, it was left to the official organ to influence the rank and file of the members as to the character and fitness of each and every candidate, whether of a favorable or unfavorable nature.

The federationists then asked to have a committee appointed to meet with a committee from the federation in St. Paul, for the purpose of working out some plan to unite the federation and the Sixth district clubs, which meant a renewal of the fight, and none of the delegates seemed to favor such action, it being ruled that the district committee, elected under the articles of association, would be able to care for any business of this nature.

The last and final attempt to turn the Sixth district clubs over to the federation was made by O. J. Bouma, it is said, who named a committee in a motion for the purpose of affiliating the Sixth district clubs with the federation which met with the same result as all previous attempts, and the meeting adjourned, on a motion made by Mr. Bouma.

A resolution passed by the convention is said to have been one condemning the alleged negligence on the part of the Milford mine investigating committee, copies of which were ordered mailed to every paper in the state.

REPAIR BRAINERD MERRIFIELD ROAD

County Commissioners Take Action on Same at Their Meeting on Saturday

CONTRACT IS AWARDED

Surfacing Also Ordered Where Needed on the "Inland Trail"

The road between Brainerd and Merrifield is to be repaired and put in excellent condition at once, the county commissioners taking this action at their meeting on Saturday.

The contract for this work was awarded to the P. W. Roark Construction Company, whose bid was $6,599.70. Work is to begin on May 10th, and is to be completed by June 15th.

The contract calls for shaping, re-shaping, scarifying and surfacing of the six miles between the Mississippi river bridge near the paper mill and Merrifield.

Some thought was given to making a cut-off on this road from the Senn corner north about one and one-half miles, thus eliminating four curves, but this change was voted down by the commissioners.

The road to Merrifield was constructed in 1915, but was not planned to carry the heavy traffic to which it has been subjected the past few years. The improvements to be made this spring will again put it in excellent condition.

The commissioners appropriated $300 for surfacing where it is needed most on the "Inland Trail" between Merrifield and Breezy Point. Quite a little work was done on this new road last season, but there are a number of heavy sandy spots where surfacing is badly needed, and County Highway Engineer Walter M. Murphy will use the appropriation for such improvements, work to begin at once.

The county commissioners at Saturday's meeting authorized bids for one and one-half miles of grading and surfacing of State Highway No. 4, from the Mississippi river bridge south toward Crosby. This highway is now completed from the bridge north to Emily.

State Highway No. 4 continues from Emily through Outing to the Cass county line, and this portion of the road is to be improved this season. Clearing has been completed, and the roadway will be widened.

Bids were also authorized for grading three miles of road on what is known as the "Dewey Highway," a road taken over by the county last year, that runs east and west through the southern tier of counties and connecting Trunk Highways No. 27 and No. 19. The three miles of grading for which bids are to be asked will shorten this road by four miles. At present there is a two-mile jog in the highway through Platte Lake township, which will be eliminated by the cut-off.

Roads in all sections of the county are in excellent condition. County Engineer Murphy had his highways in fine shape to enter the winter freeze-up, and as a result these roads are in much better shape this spring than usual. Maintenance men are employed to keep these roads in good condition through the heavy traffic season, so that Crow Wing county will have among the best highways in the state.

GOLF COURSE OPENS SOON

First Tournament of the Season to be Played Memorial Day

The board of directors of the Brainerd Country club met on Saturday evening at the Chamber of Commerce, and passed on a number of new memberships and on general business that was brought before it.

It was decided to open the golf course officially at once, allowing play thereon about two weeks earlier than in the past. The first tournament of the season will be played on Memorial Day, as is the custom, it being a tournament among the local players.

The first tourists of the season were here last week and played on the grounds. The visitors are from Nebraska, and expressed themselves as being very favorably impressed with the local course.

A resolution was passed to the effect that members of the club are given permission to take a friend out to play golf three times during the season, and another resolution making the ministers of the city honorary members of the country club.

The new tractor and mower have been received and have been put into use on the grounds and a number of improvements are being planned for this season.

FATE TAKES HAND IN BASEBALL DRAMA

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

New York, May 5.—Luck, as is represented in the breaks of the game, has always been a big factor in baseball, and fate once decided a pennant race in 1920, but it is seldom that fate ever took two twists as strange and unusual as it did early this season.

Jack Hendricks and Johnny Evers are back at the wheel of two major league ball clubs, because fate took the deal and gave them a hand after the cards had been running bad for years.

Hendricks once managed the St. Louis Cardinals for a season and he would have to have the help of the angels to do something with the team in one season. He failed, and was sent to the minor leagues.

He made good in the minors, but after a long career with the owners of the Indianapolis club he was forced to resign because the policies of a youth did not agree with those of a manager who had been through every mill in the game.

Hendricks tried to land many jobs, and failed. When it seemed that he was out of baseball, his friend, Pat Moran, offered him a job as coach and assistant manager of the Reds.

Perhaps Pat Moran remembered the time when he had been canned from the management of the Philadelphia Nationals after he had won a pennant for them. He was out of a job when a good friend, John McGraw, offered him a place as coach with the Giants.

It might have been that Pat knew he wasn't long for the world and he wanted Jack Hendricks to be in a position to get a good break. Perhaps he remembered that McGraw had released him from a contract so that he could take the management of the Cincinnati Reds and thereby take a pennant right out from under the nose of his benefactor.

Regardless of the reasons, Hendricks was given a job with the Reds and when Moran died, suddenly, Hendricks was appointed to his place. If Moran had willed his job to anyone when he passed away, Hendricks would have been the beneficiary.

The tough breaks that Hendricks had before fate tossed him a hand were not to compare with the trials that Johnny Evers had all through his career.

Evers had his career cut short as a star player when he sustained a broken leg, and he was forced to get into the managerial end of the game. He was released from the management of the Chicago Cubs, although he had been anything but a failure, and he was out of a job.

He had a prosperous business in Troy, N. Y., when an economic slump hit him, and he failed, losing everything.

The Pat Moran strain in the workings of fate then crossed his career. When Moran was winning the 1919 pennant and Evers was out of a job, he found a place for Johnny as a scout to follow the White Sox. Johnny trailed them around the circuit for a month and when the world's series came he sat in council with Moran all during the series.

Kid Gleason later offered Evers a job as coach with the White Sox. He served in that capacity for some time, until he was approached with an offer to accept an appointment as a deputy boxing commissioner in New York. Evers resigned his job with the Sox and the appointment to the boxing commission never came. He was again out of a job.

When Frank Chance was appointed manager of the White Sox, after having been released from the management of the Boston Red Sox, he offered a job to the pivot man of that immortal Cub combination, Tinker to Evers to Chance, and Johnny accepted the position as his assistant.

Chance suddenly was stricken ill. He was unable to take the White Sox squad to the southern training camp, and Evers was asked by the club owners to take the team to camp and bring it back in shape.

It was expected that Chance would have been recovered sufficiently to take over the club for the opening of the season, but he suffered a relapse and he was ordered back to California.

Evers was then named as manager to succeed his old friend and former manager, and Chance is not to make the 1924 pennant race as the leader of the Sox.

JOCK MALONE DEFEATS MIKE DEMPSEY, 10 ROUNDS

Rochester, N. Y., May 5. — Jock Malone, St. Paul boxer, defeated Mike Dempsey in 10 rounds here, the western boy at no time being in danger of losing.

Malone tried hard for a knockout, and in the closing rounds, hit Dempsey with everything he had, but the Rochester boy managed to weather the storm.

Twice Dempsey hit low, but Malone refused to entertain a protest either time.

The victory of the St. Paul boy was clean cut, and his footwork and boxing was beautiful. A snappy left jab kept Dempsey's head bobbing through most of the fight.

The Rochester boy's stamina kept him from a knockout, as he was given a tremendous amount of punishment.

General Cass an Explorer

Gen. Lewis Cass of Michigan was an explorer as well as an eminent soldier and statesman. He organized an expedition at Detroit and led it up the Detroit river and through the lakes to the Mississippi in the spring and summer of 1820 for the purpose of exploring the river to its ultimate source. General Cass reached the Mississippi too late in the season to penetrate its source and his expedition rested in the lake in Minnesota, which now bears his name. Having several men of scientific attainments, the expedition was distinguished by its attention to the peculiar characteristics of the Indian tribes and the botany, mineralogy and meteorology of the regions traversed. Cass lake is a fine body of transparent water about 18 miles in length.—Detroit News.

SULPHUR CLEARS UP ROUGH OR RED SKIN

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Mento-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation begins at once to soothe irritated skin and heal eruptions such as rash, pimples and ring worm. It seldom fails to remove the torment and disfigurement, and you do not have to wait for relief from embarrassment. Improvement shows quickly. Sufferers from skin trouble should obtain a small jar of Rowles' Mento-Sulphur from any good drug-gist and use it like cold cream.—Advt.

FATE TAKES HAND IN BASEBALL DRAMA

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

New York, May 5.—Luck, as is represented in the breaks of the game, has always been a big factor in baseball, and fate once decided a pennant race in 1920, but it is seldom that fate ever took two twists as strange and unusual as it did early this season.

Jack Hendricks and Johnny Evers are back at the wheel of two major league ball clubs, because fate took the deal and gave them a hand after the cards had been running bad for years.

Hendricks once managed the St. Louis Cardinals for a season and he would have to have the help of the angels to do something with the team in one season. He failed, and was sent to the minor leagues.

He made good in the minors, but after a long career with the owners of the Indianapolis club he was forced to resign because the policies of a youth did not agree with those of a manager who had been through every mill in the game.

Hendricks tried to land many jobs, and failed. When it seemed that he was out of baseball, his friend, Pat Moran, offered him a job as coach and assistant manager of the Reds.

Perhaps Pat Moran remembered the time when he had been canned from the management of the Philadelphia Nationals after he had won a pennant for them. He was out of a job when a good friend, John McGraw, offered him a place as coach with the Giants.

It might have been that Pat knew he wasn't long for the world and he wanted Jack Hendricks to be in a position to get a good break. Perhaps he remembered that McGraw had released him from a contract so that he could take the management of the Cincinnati Reds and thereby take a pennant right out from under the nose of his benefactor.

Regardless of the reasons, Hendricks was given a job with the Reds and when Moran died, suddenly, Hendricks was appointed to his place. If Moran had willed his job to anyone when he passed away, Hendricks would have been the beneficiary.

The tough breaks that Hendricks had before fate tossed him a hand were not to compare with the trials that Johnny Evers had all through his career.

Evers had his career cut short as a star player when he sustained a broken leg, and he was forced to get into the managerial end of the game. He was released from the management of the Chicago Cubs, although he had been anything but a failure, and he was out of a job.

He had a prosperous business in Troy, N. Y., when an economic slump hit him, and he failed, losing everything.

The Pat Moran strain in the workings of fate then crossed his career. When Moran was winning the 1919 pennant and Evers was out of a job, he found a place for Johnny as a scout to follow the White Sox. Johnny trailed them around the circuit for a month and when the world's series came he sat in council with Moran all during the series.

Kid Gleason later offered Evers a job as coach with the White Sox. He served in that capacity for some time, until he was approached with an offer to accept an appointment as a deputy boxing commissioner in New York. Evers resigned his job with the Sox and the appointment to the boxing commission never came. He was again out of a job.

When Frank Chance was appointed manager of the White Sox, after having been released from the management of the Boston Red Sox, he offered a job to the pivot man of that immortal Cub combination, Tinker to Evers to Chance, and Johnny accepted the position as his assistant.

Chance suddenly was stricken ill. He was unable to take the White Sox squad to the southern training camp, and Evers was asked by the club owners to take the team to camp and bring it back in shape.

It was expected that Chance would have been recovered sufficiently to take over the club for the opening of the season, but he suffered a relapse and he was ordered back to California.

Evers was then named as manager to succeed his old friend and former manager, and Chance is not to make the 1924 pennant race as the leader of the Sox.

JOCK MALONE DEFEATS MIKE DEMPSEY, 10 ROUNDS

Rochester, N. Y., May 5.—Jock Malone, St. Paul boxer, defeated Mike Dempsey in 10 rounds here, the western boy at no time being in danger of losing.

Malone tried hard for a knockout, and in the closing rounds, hit Dempsey with everything he had, but the Rochester boy managed to weather the storm.

Twice Dempsey hit low, but Malone refused to entertain a protest either time.

The victory of the St. Paul boy was clean cut, and his footwork and boxing was beautiful. A snappy left jab kept Dempsey's head bobbing through most of the fight.

The Rochester boy's stamina kept him from a knockout, as he was given a tremendous amount of punishment.

Brainerd scored in the fourth when Peterson singled, Zakariassen sacrificed by placing Peterson on second and the latter stole third when Molstad struck out, and scored when Brown hit to the pitcher who let the ball go through.

In the fifth inning, Engbretson singled, Lyddon was hit by a pitched ball, and Zakariassen singled, scoring Engbretson.

In the sixth Engbretson again hit, when Brown reached first on an error and scored on Engbretson's double, and later Engbretson scored on Hagberg's single to right.

General Cass an Explorer

Gen. Lewis Cass of Michigan was an explorer as well as an eminent soldier and statesman. He organized an expedition at Detroit and led it up the Detroit river and through the lakes to the Mississippi in the spring and summer of 1820 for the purpose of exploring the river to its ultimate source. General Cass reached the Mississippi too late in the season to penetrate its source and his expedition rested in the lake in Minnesota, which now bears his name. Having several men of scientific attainments, the expedition was distinguished by its attention to the peculiar characteristics of the Indian tribes and the botany, mineralogy and meteorology of the regions traversed. Cass lake is a fine body of transparent water about 18 miles in length.—Detroit News.

SULPHUR CLEARS UP ROUGH OR RED SKIN

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Menthosulphur, declares a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation begins at once to soothe irritated skin and heal eruptions such as rash, pimples and ring worm.

It seldom fails to remove the torment and disfigurement, and you do not have to wait for relief from embarrassment. Improvement shows quickly. Sufferers from skin trouble should obtain a small jar of Rowles' Menthosulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.—Adt

Camphor for Sore Eyes

SAGE AND SULPHUR
DARKENS GRAY HAIR
Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.—Advt.
